ZiF Network of Young Scholars

The Center for Interdisciplinary Research (ZiF) of Bielefeld University invites young scholars of all disciplines to apply for the ZiF Network of Young Scholars.

The ZiF is an internationally operating Institute for Advanced Study that fosters innovative projects and exchange between researchers beyond disciplinary boundaries.

The ZiF network intends to bring together outstanding young scholars of all disciplines. Membership is for five years and a four-week fellowship is part of it. In addition, members have the opportunity of convening interdisciplinary workshops; they come together three times per year to discuss a jointly chosen interdisciplinary subject.

To qualify for submitting an application, the following conditions must be fulfilled:

- outstanding graduation (dated no more than seven years ago)
- at least one subsequent publication
- an active interest in interdisciplinary issues
- readiness to get involved in the network by convening an interdisciplinary workshop and by participating in the meetings of the network

Applications—together with a CV and a project outline for an interdisciplinary workshop (2 – 5 pages)—should be sent to the Managing Director
